Drones over Pyeongchang

by Elaine McDermott

High above snow-capped mountains of Pyeongchang, one thousand drones ignite the night sky.

Tonight, as the Olympic Rings hover overhead, a renewed feeling of hope and harmony spreads through the crowd, a crowd that remembers how two divided nations opened the ceremonies, walking in side by side.

The Snowboarder, a beacon of strength and grace, glides over Mount Olympus, flooding the Korean Peninsula with light, pleasing the gods.