Vitamin D deficiency: Have you gone outside today?

Lindsey Norman
University of Southern Mississippi

Follow this and additional works at: http://aquila.usm.edu/student_brochures

Part of the Public Health and Community Nursing Commons

Recommended Citation

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the College of Nursing at The Aquila Digital Community. It has been accepted for inclusion in Student Brochures by an authorized administrator of The Aquila Digital Community. For more information, please contact Joshua.Cromwell@usm.edu.
What do you need to know about vitamin D?

- Vitamin D makes your bones and teeth strong.
- You can get Vitamin D from some foods and sunlight.
- Vitamin D helps the body bring in calcium.
- Not having enough is called vitamin D deficiency.
- Half of adults do not have enough vitamin D.

True or False

1. Vitamin D can be found in egg yolks.
2. Wearing sunscreen will stop your body from taking in vitamin D.
3. Kids who play outside a lot will not have enough vitamin D.

(answers on previous page)

References

Have you gone outside today?
What are some risk factors?

- Older adults
- Darker skin tones
- Obesity
- People who do not go outside often

&

- Sunscreen
- Certain medicines
- Diseases that stop the body from taking in vitamin D
  - Crohn’s Disease
  - Celiac Disease

Are you getting enough vitamin D?

- 0-12 months: 400 international units every day
- 1-70 years old: 600 international units every day
- 71 years old and older: 800 international units every day

How do I get enough vitamin D?

You can get the amount you need from:

- Fish: Salmon
- Egg Yolks
- Milk with added vitamin D
- Cereal with added vitamin D
- Sunlight

Symptoms

- Bone pain
- Muscle weakness
- Low levels of vitamin D in the blood

Treatments? (Choose One)

- Go outside more often
- Eat more foods that have vitamin D
- Drink milk or juices that have vitamin D
- Take a vitamin D pill