Secretary Howell thanked outgoing Secretary Brannock for her work as Secretary and as chair of the Awards Committee. Pres. Rehner presented gift bags for these outgoing officers.

Pres. Rehner thanked outgoing senators for their efforts on behalf of the University, indicated that their contributions have been significant, and stated that they will be missed.
5.0 Remarks from administration

Pres. Rehner stated that President Saunders sent regrets that she was unable to attend this meeting.

Provost Lyman’s discussion focused primarily on an item recently approved by IHL and administrative expansion.

At the May IHL meeting, Southern Miss received permission to plan for an undergraduate ABET-accredited Engineering program in Polymer Science and Engineering, with a proviso that Southern Miss not go back for 10 years to request more Engineering programs.

Provost Lyman distributed a handout that he had prepared comparing changes in administrative data between 1993 and 2007 at research universities in Mississippi and adjacent states. He cited a Goldwater Institute Policy Report and university Web sites as the sources of his data. He gave Pres. Rehner a copy of the Goldwater Report. Provost Lyman then discussed his analysis and provided insights.

Sen. Tingstrom indicated that administrative expansion would be less of an issue if salaries were comparable. Sen. Hauer voiced concern that we do not know who we are. Sen. Haley questioned where the growth is happening and asked if it is aligned with the University’s mission.

Provost Lyman suggested that the Web site IPEDS (The Integrated Postsecondary Education Data System) http://nces.ed.gov/ipeds/ is full of data and encouraged senators to review it; he stated his belief that tremendous growth has occurred in terms of staff that handle students.

Pres. Rehner stated that an item previously discussed at Faculty Senate was access for Gulf Coast students to Health Services. Provost Lyman stated that he is not involved with the Gulf Coast just now; but from his recollection of this item, it seemed the Faculty Senate was more interested than were the Gulf Coast students.

Discussion evolved to “what is the identity of the Gulf Coast?” as well as “what is the identity of the Hattiesburg campus?” and “what programs should we market?”

Pres. Rehner stated that at the last meeting, the Faculty Senate endorsed program participation in the University Assessment process. Historically, some programs have not embraced the program assessment process; some of the same programs submitted minimal, if any, reports for the UPC process. He stated that the Administration needs to look at this.

Provost Lyman indicated that he plans to work with the deans to determine how the 20 to 22 retirement positions can be reallocated in the 2012-2013 academic year.

Provost Lyman stated that there is tremendous demand for programs offered by the School of Mass Communication but that there has not been much enthusiasm among faculty to support that demand. Pres. Rehner stated that the UPC process involved reviewing materials submitted by the programs, ranking, and then prioritizing. According to Rehner, the UPC process was not a popularity contest. The UPC reviewed materials submitted and made recommendations based upon the UPC’s analysis of a set of criteria.

Sen. Oshrin thanked Provost Lyman for preparing the document he distributed. Lyman encouraged senators to review the numbers and charts in the Goldwater Report.
Sen. Branton asked Provost Lyman about his recent trip to Linyi University in China. Lyman stated that Linyi has sent eight to ten faculty members to various departments at Southern Miss and that Linyi has indicated an interest in developing a more formal exchange relationship with Southern Miss.

Sen. Ding provided a historical background of the relationship between Southern Miss and Linyi. He stated that quality of education is a big issue in China.

Provost Lyman closed his discussion with a reminder that College Hall is closing on July 1 for renovations.

6.0 Officers’ Reports

6.1 President

Pres. Rehner welcomed incoming senator Zelner. Other senators will be seated following completion of subsequent rounds of Faculty Senate elections. He then discussed his goals for this year, what it means to be Faculty Senate President, and what the Senate stands for.

One of the jobs of senators is to get and share information. This process is much like assembling the pieces of a mosaic – laying on a table the pieces that we know and figuring out what is going on. Is this an emerging trend or a trend that is short-sighted?

All senators need to be active senators; Rehner invited all senators to participate in Senate dialogue. He also encouraged senators to speak about the Senate in their colleges and departments and to encourage a willingness to serve.

He stated a need for the Senate to believe in shared governance and to have a voice in the process. He also indicated that sub-committees facilitate spreading out Senate work and provide opportunities for dialogue.

Rehner will look for a Senate meeting place that can be set up in galley format and will include room for guests and enough technology to communicate with the Coast.

He enumerated these specific goals:

1) gather and share information
2) increase the influence and effectiveness of the Senate
3) strengthen and protect the structures of shared governance
4) push the notion of strategic planning
5) advocate for faculty (defending tenure lines, encouraging the freedom of faculty to speak, etc.)

Pres. Rehner stated that he is excited about the year and requested input from all regarding how to move forward.

Pres. Rehner reported that the Senate checking account at the Credit Union may have $25 in it. He stated a need for some discretionary funds and suggested several ways to acquire these funds. Sen. Beckett indicated a preference that each Senator contribute $5 or $10 at a given faculty meeting. Sen. Lux suggested bringing money to the Senate Retreat so that funds would be available when the Senate needs them.

8.2 Election of new senators

Sen. Burgess stated that the response rate with electronic balloting has been better than was the response rate with paper ballots used in previous years. She and former Pres. Davis met recently with iTech regarding the elections. Second-round ballots will be available for voting on Monday, June 6; and the system will permit persons to vote between then and July 3. A third-round of balloting, if needed, will occur after that.
Pres. Rehner distributed a Senate Membership list and requested senators to notify him of any discrepancies in the list.

Pres. Rehner called for nominations for the office of Secretary-elect. Sen. Branton was named Secretary-elect by acclamation.

8.5 Other?

9.0 Committee Reports

9.1 Academic and Governance (Redalje/Shelley)

No report.

9.1.1 Faculty Handbook (Lux)

Sen. Lux stated that the bylaws have been approved by the President. She indicated that some requests for Handbook changes have come from the Research office with a need to set up a Board of Inquiry and a request to streamline the process. She will send info to the Senate via email.

Sen. Lux reported that the Gulf Coast Faculty Council would like to be recognized as a campus body; the Faculty Handbook Committee suggested that this request go to the Committee on Committees. Sen. Chatham stated that the Gulf Coast Faculty Council functions much like the Faculty Senate does, but focuses exclusively on the Coast. Sen. Haley indicated that if the request were sent to him, then he would forward it to the Committee on Committees.
Suggestions offered, questions raised, concerns stated by several senators regarding the request from the Gulf Coast Faculty Council include the following: These issues are specific to the Coast. Consider making a separate committee within the Faculty Senate. Will all the College Councils have special representation on the Senate? The University has evolved a new structure for the Gulf Coast. Do we have “campus” Senates? This is very “murky”. Was the new administrative arrangement on the Gulf Coast intentional or did it “just happen”? This is one of the many unresolved issues involving the Gulf Coast; including budget, tenure and promotion, others.

Pres. Rehner suggested that this item be placed on the agenda for the Senate to discuss. He added that having a dual faculty structure is difficult.
